By Way of Comparison.

[FROM BEATTYVILLE ENTERPRISE.]

The qualification of candidates for public office is a proper subject for discussion. Fair discussion may lead to a determination of relative fitness for office. People do discuss such questions privately and publicly.

We see no reason why newspapers should not indulge in such discussions.

Two gentlemen have announced their candidacy for the Republican nomination for Circuit Judge. We have heard of no other candidates for this nomination. Republicans must decide which of the two they will have as their nominee. The two candidates are Judge Gourley and James P. Adams.

We propose to fairly compare the qualifications of the two gentlemen for the office for which they aspire. We shall do so in a manner as fair and free from vindictiveness as we can. We are for Judge Gourley, but we are for him on merit, and for the same reason we are not for Mr. Adams.

Granting what we believe to be true, that both gentlemen are honorable and upright and that both are true and loyal Republicans, two questions remain to be determined. Which is the better qualified and which will it be better to nominate from the standpoint of party expediency. Having disposed of the first satisfactorily, we shall have no trouble with the second.

First, let us inquire into James P. Adams' qualifications. He is about 42 years of age and has been practicing law only a few years. Before that he was clerk of the Magoffin circuit court. He served a term in the legislature. He has been commonwealth's attorney for over two years. He had very little practice before he was elected commonwealth's attorney. Since that time he has had no practice except in criminal cases. There you have him.

Now let us take up Judge Gourley. He was admitted to the bar in 1878 and has been engaged in the practice of law ever since. He was county judge of Lee county and a deputy in the county clerk's office. He has handled the biggest litigation in the country, both civil and criminal. He is known to be one of the deepest lawyers and best practitioners in the State. There you have him.

Judge Gourley is considered a good lawyer. Mr. Adams is not considered a good lawyer. This sums up the question of qualification.

Now as to expediency. Can the Republicans afford to put up anybody but the best qualified man? Will the voters stand for anything else? After the nomination is made the whole people will have a say. We must come with the best we have in our shop. The voters at large know who is qualified. They will support the qualified man.

Thus, it is apparent that we must nominate Judge Gourley. He measures up to the standard of qualification and expediency. The other course is suicidal. We do not speak in disparagement of Mr. Adams, but for the good of the party.

J. B. Stidham was a caller at our office Wednesday and had The News sent to his son, Taylor Stidham at Glendale, Ohio.

Dr. G. S. McDonald and Monroe McGuire, of Beattyville, were in Jackson Saturday and Sunday.

Ned.

John H. Combs and Elias Mullins held religious services on Leatherwood Sunday. A large audience and good order prevailed. They will hold services on Tennessee the fourth Sunday in April, if not providentially hindered. All are invited. John H. Combs did not write the correspondence from Ned that appeared in the Jackson Democrat of last week.

Howard's Creek.

W. E. Gambill, Samuel Stidham, Alfred Gambill and Newton Arrowood have been logging. The business is not paying enough and the scanty growth of timber is rapidly disappearing. The big tide covered up Bryant Spicer's fence with sand and placed some large raft logs in Manford Clemmons' door yard. Preston Arrowood, who recently moved to this creek, is preparing to move away. Bud Noble has moved to Lost Creek. Isaac Fugate has moved into his new house, near the site of the old one. James Gillum has moved into his new house above Harve Gillum's. Sewell Allen and Diddle Clemmons are reported to have fired on the mail carrier on Canoe and are now on Miller's creek trying to avoid arrest. George and Wiley Anderson have rented a part of their field to James Gillum. Thomas Allen organized a Sunday school in our district last Sunday. He appointed for teachers: Alfred Russell and El Gambill, both of whom are fine young men. Rev. W. J. Arrowood has just returned from a visit to his relations in Lee county. The flood was very severe in that county and much damage was wrought, among which was the destruction of the dinky railroad up Miller's creek. Mrs. Nancy Stidham has been very low again. Miss Sallie Arrowood sold thirty-two chickens to Wm. Russell a few days ago.

WOLFE COUNTY. Campton.

W. B. Duff has moved to his new property on Plummer street, same being the house recently vacated by Kelley Fuls. The outlook in the oil field is not very encouraging just at this time. Beckett & Company drilled in a dry well on the Sy Cable farm this week; also the John H. Morgan Co. on one on Bear Pen this week. Hon. A. C. Oliver is in Frankfort this week on business. J.

H. Stamper, Jr., went to Richmond last Friday on business, returning Saturday. Uncle William Taulbee, residing about one mile north of Campton, died at his home Friday night. He was buried on Holly Creek by the Masons on Saturday. D. C. Miller, Jr., is this week moving to his new home in Campton. He comes from Hazel Green where he has been in the mercantile business.

The quarterly meeting was conducted at the Methodist church last Saturday and Sunday by Presiding Elder Southgate of Lexington. He preached some forceful sermons while here. Mrs. C. G. Curry, of Jackson, is visiting relatives in and near town this week. H. E. Oney and wife, who have been in Mississippi for some months, returned Saturday. Charley Combs and Volney Murphy were calling on their "best girls" at Clay City Saturday and Sunday. The following marriage licenses have been issued since our last letter: H. C. Rose, of Lee City, to Miss Lou Dora Sebastain, of Daysboro, and Osa Campbell to Susie Bellamy. The following persons were registered at the Central Hotel since last week: Bruce Rose and A. A. Duff, Lee City; J. T. Sims, Lexington; Herman Synder, Wakefield, Ky.; P. L. Center, Hazel Green; C. R. Cox, Olive Hill. Attorney J. M. Tester, of Stillwater, was in town Saturday looking after the interest of some of his clients in Quarterly Court. Fiscal Court was in session here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of last week and many public matters were attended to.
